The Client

With over 65 years of men's fashion retailing experience, this Mumbai-based company has been serenading fashionistas with its exquisite collection of T-shirts and shirts. Over the years, the brand has carved out its own place in the haute couture world and earned the respect and affection of its 500,000 customers through its timeless quality. The store offers 25,000 unique shirts at any given point of time, thus garnering a colossal base of repeat customers spread across India and Middle East. What differentiates the brand is its ability to launch an average of 26 new designs of shirts/T shirts on a daily basis. In the days to come, they aim to ride the crest of success through its offerings.

The Roadblock: How a lackadaisical website impacted the ecommerce firm's sales volume

Website speed or page load time is a critical component for Ecommerce companies as they impact the users' overall shopping experience. The better the user experience a customer has, the more likely they are to buy and hence, the more likely there can be a surge in conversion rates. Slow loading web pages frustrate visitors into abandoning the website before checkout and compel them to navigate elsewhere.

The result: Lost sales, unhappy customers and a dent in brand's reputational value! The fashion brand, that was selling its products via both the offline and online route, was facing a similar challenge. They were increasingly facing the problem of website slowdown which took a toll on the firm's productivity and profitability.

Here's a closer look at the list of challenges faced by the ecommerce brand:

- Longer load times impacted the existing website's Google search engine rankings.
The result: Low website traffic and disappointing user experience.
- Increasing customer complaints due to slow page load time and cumbersome site navigation.
- Customers preferred to book products using email or phone as browsing products online took a much longer time and the tiny product pictures did not help much.
- The website admin section lacked some important features and the site was not interactive to the users.
- There was no provision to check the size of shirts, thereby resulting in a lot of product returns.

How a Fast-Responsive Website Developed by Direction Helped

The company was in dire need of a lightning-fast page load website in order to augment visitor engagement, retain customers and increase sales. After evaluating several vendor options, the client associated with Direction to resolve the bottlenecks, attract more customers and ensure a higher growth curve. The team at Direction was proactive to present new ideas, share and discuss every small thing with the client to facilitate its involvement in developing the new website. Here's a ringside view of the solution implemented by Direction:

- Optimized coding using CakePHP and inclusion of features like load-on-scroll, inline search, quick view facility (where a customer can purchase without leaving the product list page), a clearly defined buying process and provisions of suggestions at varied stages ensured a faster and user-friendly site.
- With an easy-to-navigate website, buyers could locate their desired products instantaneously. Also the checkout process was much faster and easier to understand. Even users could buy without registering. An issue management system was included enabling a one-to-one dialogue between the customers and customer service department. The section of incomplete orders was incorporated enabling the customer care department to interact with users directly and resolve their issues. Direction also incorporated a new testimonial section which was an incredible way to boost sales and credibility. The testimonials showcased
- the company's proven track record of meeting customer expectations.
- Three new sections (not related to products) such as 'view your picture on the site wearing their shirt,' 'submit your design for a contest,' 'vote on the submitted designs and win prizes' were included. As a result, visitor engagement increased leading to increase in conversion rates.

- The admin section was totally revamped with every existing page reworked to display the right data clearly and in an easy-to-navigate format. New sections such as sales report, issue management contests, content management systems, SEO and newsletter were introduced.
- The website was SEO optimized and this drastically improved the site's Google rankings.
- The onscreen display was increased. A parallel microsite for mobile users was made. Product image size was increased as per the new site's dimensions. The process of browsing, searching and checkout was hence a delight.
- The sales report was made to display information exactly as per the client requirement.
- The size selection process was modified so that it was easy for consumers to understand that this company's shirts were a size bigger than the other branded shirts. The issue of size-related product returns was curbed to a large extent.
- The section of promotional gift vouchers was incorporated in the site, where campaigns and promotions were managed and a large number of promotional voucher codes were generated.
